A note from the author

I loved writing about Armand because he was such a kind man. I also learned a lot about inventors and how and why they invent. It's so admirable that Armand was able to take a tragic situation and use it as inspiration for his inventions. He created something positive out of a heartbreaking event. Armand changed the way people all over the world get around, especially in winter — what a great Canadian!

Meet J. Armand Bombardier

1. Design and name your own machine to zoom over a terrain of your choice. It could travel on snow, water, sand or even the clouds! How does your machine work? What's its purpose? Present your design to your class.
2. Make a list of three other Canadian inventors and their inventions. How did these inventions help people?
3. If you were a kid during Armand's time, do you think you'd be an inventor too? What kinds of things would you invent? Draw one of your inventions to share with your classmates.
4. Even though Armand was a successful inventor, he made a lot of mistakes along the way. Have you ever broken or fixed a toy or machine? What did you learn from this experience? Write at least three sentences about what happened.
5. Armand's vehicle was designed to help people travel during the winter, but many people would rather stay inside during this season! Do you like winter? Make a list of five things you like or dislike about it and discuss with your classmates.
