About This Book

Not Albuquerque. Not Phoenix. Not Ukiah. How do you get home if you don't know where you are? Even worse, how do you get home if the town you're in can't even be found on a map?

India, Finn and Mouse Thompkins are on their way to Fort Baker to live with their Uncle Red after the foreclosure of their house. They left everything behind, including their dog Henry, and most importantly, their mother. When they end up in Falling Bird instead of Fort Baker they find themselves in a "perfect" world — a parade in their honour and a house full of everything they could ever dream of. But the fantasy unravels quickly and all three must race against time to get back home!

It's true that things are not always what they seem. It's also true that if something is too good to be true, it's often not real. Will the Thompkins kids learn that valuable lesson in time and work together to save themselves?

Tips, Scripts and More...

Gennifer Choldenko takes her readers on a total departure from reality. No Passengers Beyond This Point is a story of misadventure and survival, set in an extraordinary place which follows its own set of rules. The fast-paced action makes this story impossible to put down, and it will stay with you long after you read the astonishing conclusion.
