

“Just like us,” Alex replied. “I wished for a friend—and you became my best friend ever!”

“Your wish was the first one I helped come true,” Cassie said, grinning. “And you’re the only person who knows about my magic charms.”

They both looked down at Cassie's pretty charm bracelet. Every time she granted someone's wish, she received another charm. So far, she had six charms that each gave her a magical power! The bird gave her the power to fly, the crescent moon allowed her to talk to animals, the butterfly let her stop time, the flower made things appear, and the cupcake charm gave her the power of invisibility. I still need to find out what power my new heart charm gives me, though, Cassie thought.

"You only need one more charm

