The bell rang to end classes for the day at Mouseford Academy. Mice spilled out of their classrooms into the hallway, filling it with cheerful squeaks.

“Do you want to watch a movie together tonight?” Pamela asked her friends the Thea Sisters. “There’s a new action film I’ve been wanting to see.”

Colette replied, “After a long week of schoolwork, I think I’m in the mood for something light and fun.”

“What do you think, Violet?” Pamela asked. But Violet wasn’t paying any attention to her friends. Instead, she was STARING at her cell phone.

“What?” Pamela asked again.

“Huh?” Violet replied, glancing around in confusion. “What?”

“Let me guess,” Paulina teased. “You were checking your email again.”

Violet smiled, a little embarrassed.

“Yes, that’s exactly what I was doing!” she replied.

A few weeks ago, the music teacher told Violet that an orchestra in London had an opening for a violinist. They were performing a new musical version of William Shakespeare’s tragedy Romeo and Juliet. Violet decided to audition, and she had been waiting eagerly for the results. Unfortunately, she hadn’t heard a thing.

“I don’t think I got the part.” Violet sighed. “I’m sure they chose someone with more experience playing in a big orchestra. Still, I can’t stop checking my email!”

“Well, you know what they say.” Nicky comforted her friend. “Things have a way of happening when you least expect them. Maybe you should try to just stop thinking about it for now.”

Violet agreed to give it a try, and the friends headed back to their dorm. A few hours later, the mouselets were watching a movie when things unfolded exactly as Nicky had guessed they would.

Buzz! Buzz!

“Do you hear that?” Paulina asked, LOOKING around.

“It’s Violet’s cell phone!” Colette exclaimed, pointing to the table.

They all LOOKED at Violet. Their friend was nestled in the cushions, fast asleep.
Paulina glanced at the screen.

“Well, it seems our sleeping beauty just received a text from a theater in London,” she told her friends. “It says: CONGRATULATIONS!”

“She got the part!” Nicky whispered excitedly.

“We have to tell her right away,” Pamela said.

“Or we could surprise her!” Colette suggested with a big smile.

When Violet woke up from her nap a short while later, she was alone. Her friends had disappeared! But there was a note on the pillow next to her. It read:

---

We have AMAZING news! But you'll have to solve this puzzle to find out what it is. Go to the library and find a special book on the third shelf in the first section.
Still a little tired from her nap and confused by the note, Violet went to the library and went to the first section of bookshelves. She quickly found a book on the third shelf that stood out from the others.

“Romeo and Juliet!” Violet exclaimed. She opened the book and found another clue inside.

You might already have solved the mystery, but don’t stop now! Go to Pamela and Colette’s room. The surprise is waiting for you there!

Violet hurried to Colette and Pamela’s room and took a deep breath before she knocked.
“Come in!” a voice called.
When she opened the door, she found her friends standing there holding a big sign with words that were music to her ears.
“The orchestra finally contacted you,” Pamela explained. “You were chosen!”
Violet’s eyes filled with happy tears.
“I can’t believe it!” she squeaked.
“Well, believe it!” Colette said happily.
“Your adventure is about to begin.”
