

For The Nature of Things, David records “stand-ups.” These are videos that introduce or end parts of the show.

He memorizes his stand-ups the same way his father taught him to work on his speeches when he was a teen. When David makes a mistake, he starts over right from the beginning.

Knowing exactly what he had planned to say has helped David with some wild situations, from unexpected encounters with animals to extreme rides on airplanes.

He's had to record his stand-ups everywhere from deep down in a blistering-hot gold mine to far out in the frigid waters of Vancouver's harbour on a snowy December day.

