JEAN LITTLE 1932-2020

Jean Little's family dedicates this book to her readers, young and old, past and present.

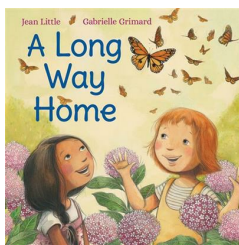

The next day, the butterfly flew to a nearby flower. How could such a tiny creature fly all the way to Mexico? Silent, the girls watched and watched. At last, "He's going, Maya," Jane whispered. "Look. And there's another one." They stood and looked after the bright butterfly. "Goodbye, butterfly," Maya whispered. "Good luck," Jane added. "Will he get there?" Jane asked her grandfather. He hesitated before he answered. "It's a long way to Mexico," he said.

Jane and Maya are very different. Maya is a quiet girl and a refugee, new to this country, while chatty and outgoing Jane has lived in the same place her whole life. The girls become instant friends. When they learn about endangered species in school, they decide to do their own small part to help by supporting migrating monarch butterflies.

Together they plant a milkweed garden to feed and shelter the tiny creatures, then watch in amazement as a monarch hatches and grows before leaving on the long journey to Mexico. After all the butterflies have departed, Maya shares her own migration story — her family's long journey to Canada. Maya wishes the monarchs safety in their new home too.

In her heartwarming final story, Jean Little weaves a simple tale of childhood curiosity into larger themes of immigration, friendship and the wonder of the natural world.

A true gift of a story from a Canadian treasure.

Revised edition

By (author) Robert Munsch 🇨🇦, Illustrated by Michael Martchenko 🇨🇦

A relatable, laugh-out-loud story about what happens when you run out of clean laundry.

Lacey never puts her clothes in the laundry hamper, until once morning she goes to get dressed for school and she finds she has . . . no clean clothes!

Her mom tells Lacey to wear a shirt her grandma gave her — a weird one that says: "Kiss me, I'm perfect!" Lacey just knows the other kids are going to make fun of her.

On the way to school, Lacey meets a cat, a dog, and an eagle. They all read her T-shirt, then give her a kiss! Then she meets a moose, who gives her a large wet moose kiss, right up the front of her face and over the top of her head. Lacey is thrilled — maybe this shirt is wonderful, not weird! But when her classmate reads the shirt and gives her a peck on the cheek: YUCK! BOY KISS!

Robert Munsch wrote this story for a girl from Stewart, B.C., a place full of all the wildlife in the book! The day he visited the school there, the kids could not go out for recess because there were two grizzly bears on the playground. Lacey was in grade one and was wearing a t-shirt that said, "KISS ME, I'M PERFECT!" This classic Munsch tale is now reissued with a bright new cover design.

Something happened in the aviary. It freaked out all the birds.

A new bird was there. He looked SCARY!

The birds were nervous and ruffled. They hoped the scary bird would just fly away again, back to the place he came from.

But the scary bird didn't leave.

He had dinner.

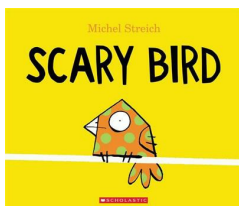

He cleaned and preened himself.

Then he settled in a quiet corner.

But when Popcorn finds a forgotten smartphone in the barn, she sets about making some brand new friends. Soon she is so busy sending messages to them that she begins to forget her old friends. When a meet-up with her new friends is about to end in disaster, the quick-thinking animals of Fiddlesticks Farm save the day... and one relieved chicken learns a lesson.

Brady Brady books are hockey — with heart!

Brady's friend Tree loves to play hockey, but there's someone in the stands who's taking all of the fun out of the game — his dad. He's determined to have a son in the NHL and it's making Tree's life miserable.

Hockey's fun, but what Tree really loves to do is sing. One day he gets his big chance, singing the anthem before an Icehogs game. Tree's voice impresses everyone. Well, everyone except his father. With the support of his teammates, Tree decides to make a stand and the compromise he works out with his dad may just take them to the NHL yet.

The Brady Brady series is much-loved by teachers and coaches for its engaging character education themes. In Brady Brady and the Singing Tree Brady and his friends confront issues of empathy, respect and acceptance.

The Icehogs dashed out of the dressing room and, without another word, pushed Tree to center ice. The crowd fell silent. Nobody knew what was going on, especially Tree.

"You don't need to tell your dad," Brady whispered in his ear. "Show him."

"Brady Brady, I can't..."

Tree was suddenly left standing alone. He closed his eyes, lifted his chin, opened his arms wide... and began to sing.

I give Dad flowers as a gift; he does a happy dance.

Then waters them
and says to me,

I groan and shake my head.
Dad gives a panicked shout.

"Don't shake your head!"
he cries.

As we get ready for the beach,
Dad tells us about his dream,

where he went to a haunted beach and ate sand-witches and ice-screeeeeeeam!

"Can you make me a sandwich?" I ask ...
then quickly regret what I said.

"You're a sandwich!" Dad cries, holding bread against my head!

Governor General's award-winning author Teresa Toten's story about one girl's transformative eight-day road-trip to retrieve her mother's body.

How do you face a heartbreaking past?
One day at a time.
Or as Aggie says, one crisis at a time.

In Teresa Toten's compelling new novel Eight Days, Samantha finds out that the mother she thought had died years ago has actually just passed away. Added to this charged secret is her recovering alcoholic grandfather's strange behaviour and sudden insistence that he take Sami back to Chicago to retrieve her mother's body.

Luckily, Sami's beloved neighbour and surrogate mother figure, Aggie, insists on coming on the road trip, bringing along her quirky sense of humour and fantastic wig collection.

The eight-day journey takes us from Toronto to Chicago and back again, as Sami, an American living with her grandfather in a Muslim-dominated apartment complex in Toronto, struggles to find out who she is and where she belongs.

Infused with warmth and love, even as family struggles and secrets are torn open, Eight Days is ultimately about forgiveness and strength in community. It is truly a novel for our times.

Gordon Korman poses the question: what would you do if you were given the chance to do things over?

Ages 9-12

Mason and Ty have been best friends forever—that is, until the cute new transfer student Ava Petrakis drives a competitive stake between them. The friendship is obliterated when Mason breaks their non-Ava treaty and kisses her beside the wrecked Tilt-a-Whirl sign.

Gordon Korman's new novel poses the question: what would you do if you were given the chance to do things over?

Mason and Ty have been best friends since they were old enough to form thoughts. But one day an atomic warhead walks into their seventh-grade classroom ready to annihilate their friendship: Ava Petrakis, the new transfer student from New York.

Mason finds himself competing against his best friend for the first time in his life, and it's not pretty. So they make a pact: a non-Ava treaty. If it worked for the Romulans and the Klingons, it has to work for them. At least that's what Mason thought until he realized Ava might actually like him back. Before he realizes it, he's kissing Ava beside the wrecked Tilt-a-Whirl sign in the middle of a freak storm, and his friendship with Ty is obliterated.

Five years later, Mason's life is a mess. He has no friends, no girlfriend, his dog has been hit by a Roto-Rooter truck, his parents are divorced and he has just been expelled from school in his senior year. Everything has gone wrong and he can trace all of it back to that one day by the Tilt-a-Whirl sign. If he could go back he would do everything differently. That's exactly what he's thinking when his Volkswagen crashes into a furniture van.

When he wakes up, he's 12 years old again. This is his chance for a do-over. Will Mason be able to fix everything, or are some things just a matter of fate?

Whatever After

Abby in Oz (Whatever After Special Edition #2)

By (author) Sarah Mlynowski

Apr 05, 2022 | Paperback, Trade | $8.99

In this second Special Edition of the New York Times bestselling Whatever After series, Abby and her friends enter the magical Land of Oz... with hilarious and empowering results!

Follow the yellow brick road...

I'm with my best friends Robin and Frankie (and my sometimes friend, Penny) when a TORNADO scoops us up and whisks us away. As soon as we land, I can tell we're not in Smithville anymore -- we've been transported into The Wonderful Wizard of Oz!

We're excited to meet Dorothy and Toto... but the story isn't going as planned. The Wicked Witch of the East locks us in her dungeon, so we have no way of getting the magic slippers that will take Dorothy home. Plus, the Emerald City is under attack, and the Wizard himself may be in danger!

Now we have to: befriend the Lion, the Tin Man, and the Scarecrow; flee the flying monkeys; learn to steer a hot-air balloon; find the courage, heart, and smarts to save the day

...or we'll never escape -- and everyone knows there's no place like home!

This edition is extra-magical, featuring puzzles, games, and a note from the author.

Scholastic Canada Biography

Meet Mary Ann Shadd (Scholastic Canada Biography)

By (author) Elizabeth MacLeod Illustrated by Mike Deas
Mar 01, 2022 | Hardcover , Paper over boards , Picture book | $16.99

Meet Mary Ann Shadd: anti-slavery activist, newspaper publisher, and social justice pioneer!

The award-winning Scholastic Canada Biography series highlights the lives of remarkable Canadians whose achievements have inspired and changed the lives of those who followed.

Mary Ann Shadd was born free in 1823 in Delaware. Her parents were abolitionists, and their home was a station on the Underground Railroad. Her family moved to Canada in 1851 after the Fugitive Slave Act was enacted, and as a young woman, Shadd became a trailblazer in every realm she touched — opening a desegregated school in Chatham, Ontario; becoming the first Black female newspaper publisher in North America with the Provincial Freeman; becoming a suffrage activist; and at the age of 60 earning a law degree to become one of the first Black women to practice law!

Mary Ann was truly remarkable, for her time or any other, unafraid to speak up and fight for equal rights — for Black people, for women and for everybody.

Written by award-winning author Elizabeth MacLeod, this portrait of Mary Ann Shadd couples simple yet compelling writing with comic-flavoured illustrations by Mike Deas that help bring her fascinating story to life!
