LITTLE OWL FEATHERS?

It was a beautiful spring morning in New Mouse City, and I woke up full of energy. I just knew that it was going to be a fabumouse day!

I poked my head out the window. A light breeze caressed my snout . . . and then a tuft of feathers as soft as snow fell onto my nose! Holey cheese!

SHOOP,
shoop,
shoop!

“How strange!” I muttered, pulling off the feathers. “Those seem like Owlet feathers . . .” But then I shook my snout. “No, that’s impawssible!”

As I got ready to head to the office, I couldn’t stop thinking about my latest fantastic adventure. I had met so many new friends and was able to explore an incredible ENCHANTED LIBRARY. What a marvemouse journey!

It had been a while since I had thought about that adventure. I wondered how Imaginaria, Sir Furry Furrington, Sophia Knowingowl, and all my other fantastical friends were doing. I would have loved to see them all again!

I put on my jacket, lost in thought, and moved toward the door when . . . OOF! I tripped on a book that was lying open on the floor.

“How strange!” I whispered. “I don’t remember leaving that there last night. I was reading a totally different BOOK!” I picked it up and took a better look. “Cheese and crackers, what a coincidence. This is the story that I wrote about my fantastic adventure with .. ✨ Imaginaría! ✨ ..

I began to leaf through it. PUFF! Another feather appeared from between the pages! How did that get there?

I shrugged and turned my snout back to the BOOK. Memories washed over me as I read about the incredible voyage that led to my new title:

THE FANTASTIC HERO!

Everything You Need to Know

About My Fantastic Adventure

Everything started the day that I, Geronimo Stilton, editor of The Rodent's Gazette, found myself inside the ENCHANTED LIBRARY. It was a magical place, but it looked like an abandoned building in Singing Stone Plaza to the rodents of New Mouse City. It was there that I met Imaginaria; her helpers, Furry and Sophia; and their loyal friends, the thirty-three owlets.

A magical place where all possible (and impossible) books that have been written (and will never, ever be written) are held.

According to Imaginaria, I was the FANTASTIC HERO they were looking for! Imaginaria needed a hero because she was in trouble . . .

big trouble. Regulus, the mysterious wicked wizard, had put a spell on her. Only I could save her by writing a fantastic story full of inspiration!

Luckily, thanks to my team of fantastic friends, I succeeded. I even ended up turning Regulus to lead! He was transformed into a statue that Imaginaria placed at the center of Singing Stone Plaza.

On top of all that, I came home with three fabumouse things: the fantastic pen (which is just my usual pen with some extra oomph!), my fantastic portrait, and the Golden Library Card.

I smiled at the memory, but I had started to feel a bit unsettled. First, I'd seen all those feathers, then my book had ended up on the floor right by the door so that I tripped on it. Could Imaginaria be trying to get my attention?

Just then the book's pages began to turn — all on their own! Squeak, what was happening?! Suddenly, the pages stopped and I jumped in surprise. The open pages were completely BLANK! It was as if the ink had disappeared.

I checked again, my paws shaking. Sure enough, from pages fifty-seven to sixty, all the text was gone!

“How can that be?” I squeaked out loud to myself.

“Well, that was probably a defective copy . . . even though the last time I LEAFED through it, everything seemed normal.”

I flipped and flipped the pages with my paws, thinking hard. Then I gave up. “I’m going to be late! I have to go. I’ll deal with this tonight.”

I felt an anxiousness churning in my stomach, so before I left I turned around and went over to my desk. I opened the drawer to look for the Golden Library Card that Imaginaria had given me. It gave me access to the Enchanted Library whenever I wanted. It was there, safe and secure, looking like a regular old library card. Whew!

“What a ’fraidy mouse!” I said with a little laugh. “If something had happened to Imaginaria or the Enchanted Library, I would already know.”

But just in case, I took the Golden Library Card and put it in my pocket.

As I walked through the streets of New Mouse

City, I continued to search for fantastic signs. Maybe an elf hanging from a tree branch in the park? Or a streak in the sky left by a witchcat? Or the windows of a house that had transformed into eyes? But I didn't see anything!

Everything was normal in New Mouse City. Cheesy creampuffs, I was worrying for nothing! So, when I finally arrived at The Rodent's Gazette offices, I said hello to everyone and got ready to bury my snout in work.

I sat down and glanced at the portrait of me on my desk. I turned as pale as a ball of mozzarella!

This wasn't just any portrait; it was the fantastic portrait that Imaginaria had given me as a thank-you gift for saving her. In the image,

I had a proud and determined look on my snout, like a true hero! But now . . .

“Squeak!” I exclaimed. “Why does my portrait look so SAD?”
